Week over week, active listings rose 74 to 6,010 while sales also climbed 19 to 1,685, holding city-wide supply steady at 3.6 months. The notable move: semi-detached MOS ticked up from 2.9 to 3.0, pulling the segment back out of seller's territory into Balanced. Condos kept improving, from 5.3 to 5.1 months on stronger sales, but remain the city's only clear buyer's market.

Sales velocity, August average daily sales: 70 (2024) → 64 (2025) → 54 (2026) — down 23% in two years. August is the most recent complete month.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- Semi-detached slipped out of seller's territory this week, with months of supply edging up from 2.9 to 3.0 — back to Balanced, even though its $400K–$500K band still leads the city, selling 51% of active stock.
- Condos remain the city's only buyer's market at 5.1 months, but kept improving — supply eased from 5.3 as sales climbed to 347, led by the $200K–$300K tier (160 sales, 22% sold).
- City-wide inventory grew this week, active listings up 74 to 6,010, while sales rose 19 to 1,685 — leaving overall supply unchanged at 3.6 months.
- Sales velocity is still cooling seasonally: August averaged 54 sales per day, down from 64 in August 2025 and 70 in August 2024 — a 23% decline over two years.
- Luxury condos remain frozen — 22 active listings over $1.5M produced zero sales again this month — while townhouse $600K–$700K kept selling briskly at 39%.
